

Unit Essential Questions:

1. What is cultural erasure and how does it impact communities?
2. Who should tell our stories, and why does it matter?

Lesson 4: Assimilation and Resistance

LESSON INTRODUCTION

Time Frame: 90 minutes

Materials: Slideshow, Cultural Tree (2 copies per student) , “Lies My Ancestors Told For Me”

In this lesson, students explore themes related to resistance, assimilation, cross generational relationships, and family identity, using the poem “Lies My Ancestors Told For Me” by Deborah Miranda, an excerpt from her longer work Bad Indian.

Bad Indian by Deborah Miranda is a creative non fiction book that explores themes around historical trauma, assimilation, cultural revitalization, family, and identity. The poem “Lies My Ancestors Told For Me” highlights the many challenges that Native communities face as they choose between protecting themselves from violence, and protecting their culture for future generations. The poem includes examples of how Native communities impacted by the Spanish missions often took on elements of Mexican culture to protect themselves. Additionally, examples of Native elders code-switching, or behaving differently depending on their audience and context, show the lengths that many elders took to preserve their cultures in spite of colonization. The title “Lies My Ancestors Told For Me” refers to the many sacrifices Native ancestors and elders have made in order to ensure that future generations had the opportunity to exist and thrive. In some cases, having the opportunity to live has meant removing oneself from traditional culture as a form of self preservation.

ENGAGE

Teacher Directions:

Provide students with a copy of the Cultural Tree diagram linked at the bottom of this lesson.

Give students time to fill out the tree. It may be helpful to you to create a model to show students.

EXPLORE

Teacher directions:

Review the movements and legislation on Slide 6.

Ask students to watch the short film, and analyze the images on slides 8-10.

Ask students the question on slide 11: How do assimilation and resistance exist at the same time?

Discussion Tips:

Students will notice that all of the examples include elements of both assimilation and resistance. Students might notice that the Native people in the video and images are speaking English, are wearing western clothing, etc. However, there are also elements of resistance, like continuing to practice beadwork, or cultural traditions. It is important to discuss how both assimilation and resistance can exist at the same time. In fact, sometimes assimilation was needed in order to survive, in order for future generations of Native youth to have an opportunity to resist and revitalize culture.

EXPLAIN

Teacher Directions:

*Poetry Analysis: Lies my Ancestors Told For Me: Slide 13

Distribute copies of the poem to students.

Reach the poem stanza by stanza, discussing the following questions:

1. Do you notice the impact of any specific assimilation movements or policies in the poem?
2. How does the poet's family protect themselves from violence?
3. In what ways do they assimilate? In what ways do they protect their culture?
4. What does the title of the poem mean?
5. Choose a line from the poem that stands out to you and share it with your neighbor

ELABORATE

Teacher Directions:

Ask students to create a Cultural Tree diagram for the narrator in the poem, listing identity and cultural details that are visible on the top, and details that are less visible on the bottom.

EVALUATE

Ask students to reflect on the following questions:

1. What are some ways that communities might protect themselves against erasure?
2. How does this help the community survive? How does it contribute to cultural erasure?

VOCABULARY

assimilate: to become absorbed and integrated into a society or culture.

resistance:the refusal to accept or comply with something; the attempt to prevent something by action or argument.

STANDARDS

Common Core:

CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RL.9-10.2

Determine a theme or central idea of a text and analyze in detail its development over the course of the text, including how it emerges and is shaped and refined by specific details; provide an objective summary of the text.

CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RI.9-10.7

Analyze various accounts of a subject told in different mediums (e.g., a person's life story in both print and multimedia), determining which details are emphasized in each account.

CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RH.9-10.6

Compare the point of view of two or more authors for how they treat the same or similar topics, including which details they include and emphasize in their respective accounts.

CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RL.9-10.4

Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in the text, including figurative and connotative meanings; analyze the cumulative impact of specific word choices on meaning and tone (e.g., how the language evokes a sense of time and place; how it sets a formal or informal tone).

CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RL.9-10.5

Analyze how an author's choices concerning how to structure a text, order events within it (e.g., parallel plots), and manipulate time (e.g., pacing, flashbacks) create such effects as mystery, tension, or surprise.

Seven Essential Understandings:

Essential Understanding 2 - There is great diversity among individual American Indians as identity is developed, defined and redefined by entities, organizations and people. A continuum of Indian identity, unique to each individual, ranges from assimilated to traditional. There is no generic American Indian.

Essential Understanding 3 - The ideologies of Native traditional beliefs and spirituality persist into modern day life as tribal cultures, traditions, and languages are still practiced by many American Indian people and are incorporated into how tribes govern and manage their affairs. Additionally, each tribe has its own oral histories, which are as valid as written histories. These histories pre-date European contact, i.e., the "discovery" of North America.

Essential Understanding 5 - There were many federal policies put into place throughout American history that have affected Indian people and still shape who they are today. Many of these policies conflicted with one another. Much of Indian history can be related through several major federal policy periods: Colonization/Colonial Period 1492 – 1800s; Treaty Period 1789 – 1871; Assimilation Period - Allotment and Boarding School 1879 – 1934; Tribal Reorganization Period 1934 – 1958; Termination and Relocation Period 1953 – 1971; Self-determination Period 1968 – Present.

Lies My Ancestors Told for Me"
By Deborah A. Miranda (Bad Indians)

(1) Riddle: when is a lie the truth?
when is the truth a lie?
When a life saves your life,
that's truth; when a lie saves the lives
of your children, grandchildren
and five generations forward, that's truth in a form so pure
it can't be anything
but a story.

(2) After the mission broke up, it was better to lie
like a dog about blood, say you are Mexican Mexican Mexican Mexican
put it on the birth certificates
put it on death certificates
tell it to the census takers tell it to the self-appointed bounty hunters who appear at your door looking for Indians Indians Indians
and when you tell that lie tell it in Spanish.

(3) Give your children Spanish
Names- Tranquilino, María Ignacia, Dolores, Faustino-
lies that deflect genocide,
so tell them loudly
at the baptismal font in the Old Mission, to the Indian Agent collecting bodies
for the Boarding School at Riverside;
broadcast the names in the street
like wheat when you call your Mexican children in at dusk
for a bite of acorn mush
and cactus apple.

(4) Grandmothers, dress like a poor white woman- in other words, like a Mexican.
Wear their heavy aprons, high-necked muslin dresses, and shoes
shoes shoes shoes
Shame your grandchildren
when they run around barefoot, what are you,
an Indian? and stand, silent, approving, when Digger

becomes their favorite slur to hurl at the youngest,
the awkward, the slow,
the dark. Don't tell them
you still speak Chumash with their mother. That's a lie your descendants will hate you for
but lie anyway,
so they'll be alive
to complain.

(5) Grandfathers, lie
about where you're going
when you slip out at night,
retrieve your dancing clothes
from the hiding place,
drive up unlit roads
to a rancheria in the hills
where clappers and rattles
whisper the truth
and bare Indian feet
beat against the earth
beat beat beat like children begging
to be let back inside.

(6) Don't teach old songs
to your grandchildren,
don't make the regalia
in front of them, don't dance where young eyes might see. Sing the alabada
when the priests can hear;
hum the Deer Song when they can't.
Drag your feet in the dust;
buy a tie for Sunday's.
Tell the lies now and maybe later
your descendants will dig
for the truth in libraries,
field notes, museums,
wax cylinder recordings,
newspaper reports of massacres
and relocations, clues you left behind
when you forgot to lie
lie lie lie
